in the Official Messenger as follows:

All attempts of the factory inspectors to pacify the workmen were fruitless, and every worker from a number of the large factories joined ed up he said to the stranger impathe strike, which spread quickly and extended to nearly all the works in tently: the city. At the same time the demands of the men increased, and these were formulated in writing mostly by Father Gopon.

The employers discussed the demands, and decided that if some of them were satisfied it could not fail to ruin industry, while others deserved Mr. Wilhelm a blow on the side of the to be examined and partially conceded.

REVOLUTIONISTS JOINED.

Furthermore, willingness was expressed to negotiate with the men, but from view, evidently to make sure that not with the strikers' organization. The workmen refused to agree to it and violated the negotiations between the masters and men of the different factories. As the strikewas being conducted without disturbance of public order further search and ran out of the room, no repressive measures were adopted and not a single person was arrested. The agitation of the Workmen's Association was, however, soon joined by the agitation of revolutionary circles. On the morning of Jan. 21 the Workmen's Association, led by Father Gopon, appeared with openly revolutionary tendencies. On Sunday Father Gopon drew up a petition of workmen to the Emperor, which contained besides demands in behalf of the men insolent de-

FATHER GOPON BLAMED.

Fanatical speeches which Father Gopon, forgetting his clerical dignity, addressed to the men and criminal agitation excited the men to such an extent that on Jan. 22 large crowds proceeded to the centre of the city. in the fourth line the populace erected three barricades of planks and wire. On one of these a red dag was hoisted. From the windows of neighboring houses shots were fired and stones were thrown at the military. The growd took swords from the policemen and armed themselves therewith. They pillaged the Schaff small arms' factory and carried off about a hundred swords, a large number of which, however, the police recovered. The crowd destroyed telegraph wires and knocked down poles.

The municipal building in the second district was attacked and demolished. In the evening five shops on the St. Petersburg side were plundered.

SHOWED NO MERCY TO THE RUSSIAN MOB

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 23.-With close to 70,000 troops under arms sign of remorse for the slaughter of yesterday on the part of those responsible of the mowing down of women and children, no indication of any change of policy and the deep rage of the people showing itself in defiant utterances, such as have never been heard in the streets before, the city is awaiting the next chapter in the tragedy which has shocked the civilized world.

RISING AT ALL POINTS.

The fearful charge of the Cossacks on the crowds of people in the treets, who had taken no part in the opening hostilities and who were nothing more nor less than spectators at the time, has convinced all that the slaughter was carefully planned by the authorities for the purpose of administering a crushing blow and quelling in one stroke the spirit of rev-

If this was the purpose of the Grand Dukes it threatens to fall far short of attainment. From every part of Russia comes news of uprisings among the workmen, of large bodies of men, inadequately armed but possessed of an almost fanatical fury, marching toward the city. From Kolpino, a manufacturing city but twenty-five miles away, twenty thousand men are coming toward the capital, and there is hardly a village within a radius of a hundred miles which is not sending its quota.

ANOTHER CLASH LIKELY

That there must soon be another clash seems certain. The temper of the people is such that it is bound to assert itself in ways that will bring the troops charging down on them again. It will be a slightly different story next time, though, for it will be an armed, if unorganized, mass that the soldiers will have to meet. It is reported that the people have seized a dynamite factory on Vasili Island, that in a dozen different places where the arsenals were inadequately protected they have raided with success.

There seems to be but one outcome to a clash, for the troops now in he city are the best in Russia and they have shown a willingness to kill their countrymen at the orders of their superiors. The people may inflict great damage on them, and it remains to be seen how long they will stand hing, that the real rulers of Russia are prepared to repeat yesterday's performance as often as necessary, and that the means is in their hands just as long as the troops remain loyal.

CZAR AT PETERHOF.

The Caar has gone to Peterhof, and the Empress Dowager, who boldly rode through the crowded streets yesterday to show her defiance of the masses and set an example to her son, has followed. There is no immediate chance of the people attaining the object they sought yesterday when behind Father Gopon they started for the Winter Palace, for the Czar will not be allowed to return until order has been restored.

Before he had completed his first phrase you could feel a magnetic spark entering your soul that would he dyou until the last syllable fell from his lips.

"It is not at all strange that he escaped in yesterday's frightful massacre. No soldier would wittingly fire upon a priest or upon one who held in his hand a crucifix or ikon. Then, this man is beginning to have an ever-increasing influence over the soldier, and this is the greatest fear of the Russian Government, for he may soon a gain the same tremendous power as a leader with the troops.

"Father Gopon has never associated himself very closely with the leading literary spirits in Russia.
